

Discover History's Most Impactful Church Builder as Never Before

*A fresh and inspiring account of Paul—history's most important
Church builder—from his perspective*

Author Keith Dixon spent years researching Paul's life in the first-century, Jewish world. He came to the conclusion that far from the untouchable images of heaven-gazing saints, the apostle Paul ruthlessly focused on his earthly duty to build God's Church. Before his dramatic conversion he had violently tried to stamp out a heretical sect of Jews – the first Christians. But Paul's encounter with Christ turned his boundless energy to building the young and fragile Church into an established and enduring body.

For many modern Christians, Paul's eagerness to act for the Lord, willingness to face danger, and seemingly inexhaustible zeal make him the very model of Godly purpose. But Paul was not perfected on the Road to Damascus. He was human, with a life that spanned decades of personal and spiritual development.

Historical fiction that embraces the literal Truth of the Bible, Paul's Journal offers readers the opportunity to walk with this pivotal messenger of Christ, from the Acts to the letters and beyond. Presented as a first-hand account, it places Paul's familiar voice within enriching historical and cultural contexts that will engage and edify any Christian.

“Paul was a fighter,” says Dixon. “He took beatings, shipwrecks, and stonings. He was under constant ridicule and called crazy, heretic, and fraud. But he always came up swinging for Christ in the fight to build God's Church.”

Paul's Journal

Keith Dixon

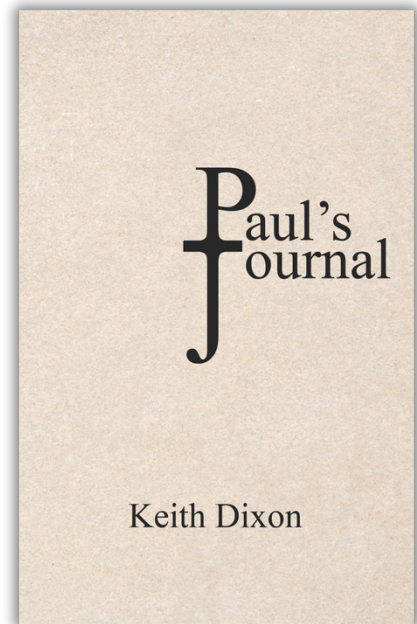

Release: September 1, 2024

Liberty Hill

Paperback, 254 pages

9798868500978

Also available as e-book and audio book

Keith Dixon

Keith Dixon graduated from Hillsdale College with a degree in History before finishing law school and becoming in-house counsel for a small engineering firm. He never expected to write this book, so Paul's Journal sat in a computer file for the better part of a decade before Keith finally finished the manuscript. By the grace of God, who kept him safe through some fairly wild years, Keith lives with his wife – fellow Hillsdale-grad, Jennica – their three children Adelaide, Clarence Patrick, and Eloise, and their German Shepherd Fenrir in an idyllic western Wisconsin neighborhood.

www.PaulsJournal.com

Suggested Interview Questions for Keith Dixon

- Share with us how the idea of Paul's Journal came about.
- You mentioned that this book can bring the Bible to life—how?
- You write that Paul wasn't always likeable, but he was working for Christ during a time of contention. Can you explain this?
- Explain the historical fiction category for the book. How much is fiction and how much is biblically accurate?
- Did you find it hard to straddle the line between fun narrative and making sure the historical context was there?
- How were you able to put yourself in Paul's shoes in order to write from his perspective?
- Tell us about the final chapter of Paul's Journal. What is different about it?
- What do you hope readers will take away from reading Paul's Journal?

To schedule an interview, please contact:
Karen Campbell, karen@karencampbellmedia.com

